DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action was made in response to an amendment filed by Applicant on 1/31/2008.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. The indicated allowability of claims 1, 4, 6, and 15-17 is withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference(s) to Hoeft et al. and Walsh. Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1,4-6,13, and 15-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hoeft et al (6,758,490) in view of Walsh (7,048,301). Hoeft et al disclose a protective device for an occupant of a vehicle comprising an inflator, an inflatable cushion 2 having first and second portions 48,56, the first portion being directly above the second portion 48 when the vehicle is upright, and in which inflation of the second portion 48,56 commences before inflation of the first portion. Though this is not specifically disclosed by Hoeft et al, as inflation conduit 56 is considered to be part of the second portion, it may be seen that inflation gas has to enter conduit 56 and, for that matter, portion 48 before entering the designated first portion of the airbag. Thus, inflation of the second portion 48,56 commences before inflation of the first portion. The first portion comprises a plurality of nodes 65 separated by uninflated material 63 abutting each node and adjacent the vehicle's roof rail, wherein the nodes are adapted, when inflated, to be positioned at approximately head and torso level of the occupant. Hoeft discloses the present invention except for the second portion comprising a material that decreases in length and is distributed substantially uniformly and continuously throughout the second portion when inflated so as to create tension. Walsh teaches a side curtain airbag 42 comprising a first portion 66 disposed directly above a second portion 64, wherein the second portion 64 comprises a material that decreases in length when inflated so as to increase tension. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the airbag of Hoeft et al with the teaching of Walsh's length decreasing material to increase tension in the second portion and thus better cushion and restrain passengers against lateral impact.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1,4-6,13, and 15-17 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
